Turbocharger solutions directly from the specialist

With our customer-individual solutions, we offer comprehensive support for the implementation of your sales targets in IAM

BMTS Technology – High-precision quality for environmentally friendly motors

BMTS Technology, formerly known as Bosch Mahle Turbo Systems, is a globally active manufacturer of exhaust turbochargers. In our plants in Europe, Asia and America, we successfully develop and produce turbochargers for cars, commercial vehicles and off-highway applications.

The name BMTS Technology stands for highest quality standards, efficiency and longevity and is associated with our constant striving towards improving the efficiency of our products while making them more environmentally friendly at the same time.

PRODUCTS

Market-leading products and system solutions for IAM

During the change of our company name from Bosch Mahle Turbo Systems to BMTS Technology, we also expanded our offer for turbochargers to include an Aftermarket area.

The high quality standard for BMTS Technology and BMTS products ensure not only our competitiveness, but primarily also that of our customers. Our activities are always oriented towards growth and we're always expanding our range of performances and scope of delivery.

In our daily work, we focus primarily on one thing: to establish and continuously develop a long-term, stable and economic relationship between BMTS and our customers.

QUALITY

Premium quality is our priority

Our customers expect the highest quality – and that's what we intend to deliver. BMTS turbochargers are characterised by exact and excellent efficiencies, dynamic responses, broad compressor maps and precision control. The individual and compact design ensures optimum adaptation to the respective vehicles and engines.

We want to set standards in quality. That's why our production departments employ state-of-the-art manufacturing facilities that enable us to draw on great processing capabilities and innovative manufacturing technologies. BMTS Technology is also certified in compliance with ISO 9001 and ISO/TS 16949 and has developed an effective and forward-looking quality-management system that has been embedded in its process-oriented management system.

SERVICE

Service Solutions – everything that makes you successful

We offer our customers a comprehensive package that contains a wide range of services and workshop-suitable information. In addition to information brochures, we'll provide you with detailed product catalogues, installation instructions and various marketing material if required. We'll also make it easier for you to identify vehicles and order spare parts using TecDoc.

Our many years of experience in the turbocharger business has additionally made us aware of how important training is. That's why we offer regular training courses to help you grow your expertise in sales and engineering. Our service team is also always on hand to answer any open questions, provide you with valuable installation and technical tips and assist in the handling of complaints.
